MATERIALS AND FINISHES

WHAT ARE GFRC CONCRETE AND POWDER-COATED FINISHES?

GFRC CONCRETE

GFRC is a glass fiber reinforced concrete material providing a pleasing aesthetic and structural integrity that lasts a lifetime. The Outdoor Plus provides options for this material during the manufacturing process. Another benefit of GFRC over traditional concrete material is that it offers more flexibility and a higher impact strength tolerance while maintaining the integrity previously mentioned. In addition to these traits, it is highly resistant to any weather or temperature fluctuations making it perfect for outdoor and fire pit use. GFRC, along with other material offered by The Outdoor Plus can be ordered with some of the color options seen below.

GFRC FINISHES

BENEFITS OF GFRC

- Longevity
- Design Versatility
- Lightweight Construction
- Minimal Upkeep Required
- High Impact and Weather Resistance

PRODUCTS OFFERED IN:

POWDER COAT FINISH

Powder - Coating is a sleek and durable material and finish process option that pairs perfectly with outdoor fire pits and tables. Powder - coated materials go through a type of surface finishing technique that involves applying a dry powder to a substrate, typically metal, and then curing it with heat. That makes the material resistant to many factors and allow it hold up over time. It is resistant to chipping or cracking - ensuring that your product stays looking just like the day it was installed and set up.
